2016 ADELAIDE HILLS 'SASHIKO' FIANO

Fiano is an Italian white wine grape variety that is grown primarily in the Campania region of southern Italy and on the island of Sicily. The grape has a long history believed to have been the grape behind the ancient Roman wine Apianum. The pronounced diurnal variation of the Adelaide Hills accentuates the aroma of Fiano.

The 2016 vintage composed of low winter rainfall and a dry spring, irrigation commenced before flowering. One significant rainfall in late January was perfectly timed, resulting in high quality grapes. These grapes were machine harvested on the 14th of March in the cool of the early morning and delivered to the winery at 7:00am where they were immediately pressed.

Grapes are pressed and then the juice is settled. The wine is fermented in stainless steel and left on fluffy yeast lees which are stirred intermittently between fermentation and bottling in late October. Lees stirring helps to build texture and creaminess in the wine.

TASTING NOTES -

This Fiano is intensely flavoured and aromatic. The nose is of home grown apricots, lifted with hints of florals, citrus and nectarine. Firm acid frames the fruit giving presence and depth. Chalky minerality is underlain with a dash of honey and spice to finish. A beautiful bright and textural wine, with great length.

FOOD MATCH -

This Fiano matches well with Italian dishes and seafood, vitello tonnato and eggplant parmigiana are two of my favourite matches.
